The drainage works needed to rectify the water incursion through the building wall facing Wilton St have now been completed at a net cost just under $70,000. The recent heavy rain gave this a good test out and there were no issues apart from some of the drains in the carpark silting up. This is an ongoing problem that requires the drains to be regularly inspected and cleaned.

The next work required is the replacement of all the flooring inside the building. Quotes have been received and work will be commissioned as soon as colours are selected and the money is received from our insurance settlement. The intention is to repaint the walls and replace the carpet in the annexe first so that the beginners classes and supervised play sessions can return to this area.

Another issue that is now becoming critical is a shortage of directors to run our sessions. I urge any member who is interested in assisting to speak to Toni. All necessary training/mentoring will be provided.

Finally Kim and I played in the Qld Graded Teams Championship held recently at the club. Entry numbers were disappointing particularly in the 'C' Grade. Just because an event carries a State Title should not discourage less experienced players from participating as this is a great way to improve your game against stronger opposition. Being a graded event also ensured your opponents were at a similar masterpoint level. One hand of interest from the event was:

At our table EW reached 6S by W after a transfer sequence following a 1NT opening. I led CA and continued when Kim encouraged so 1 off was the result. Our team mates also reached the same contract but received the lead of DJ so made 13 tricks for a 14 imp swing. In the 'A' section the slam was bid at 6 out of 12 tables and made on 5 occasions. Only 1 pair reached slam in the 'B'/'C' sections and also made. Against a suit slam I tend to lead an ace unless something in the bidding warns me not to but this was clearly a minority view on the day. Incidentally Kim and I would have stopped in 4S had we held the EW cards as our system would have allowed us to diagnose the club weakness. Too much information can sometimes result in a loss if the defenders don't find their tricks! Ray

I moved to Brisbane from Barcelona a month ago and I have been enjoying playing at

QCBC with Margaret Dyer who has been very welcoming and helpful providing me advice for settling in. I am originally from Scotland and left home after University to work in a career in IT which has allowed me to live in London, New York,

Auckland and also to travel to lots of places in between. I have a kiwi wife and a 2.5 year old daughter called Sophia. I learned to play bridge 3 years ago and as I am sure everyone with much more experience would say there is always more to learn. I often practise on Bridge Base Online where I enjoy the head-to-head format challenges and bingo bridge tournaments. I also enjoy reading the Aces on Bridge blog which is written daily by former Dallas Aces member and 11 time world champion Bobby Wolff. I appreciate the kind welcome I have received by the club members. Lee McGovern

Pamela and Jim Evans have been in Canada promoting the bridge scene in Queensland.

Jim's attempts at recruiting failed (thank goodness!) This candidate beat a hasty retreat.

Pamela had more success at the bridge table.

Whilst on holiday in Canada, Pamela and I wanted to play bridge. So we went to the Vancouver Bridge Centre and had a game.

Unfortunately when we were into the third round, someone said there was a bad odour in the building and two or three people said it was making them sick. The night was called off so we only got to play seven or eight hands and then we went home.

Here is a hand Pamela played well.

X=Lebensohl
2NT=0-8 points, any shape
3NT= scared we may miss a game!

Pamela bid 2NT Lebensohl showing 0-8 points. West then found a 3 Club bid and I bid 3NT hoping Pamela was closer to eight than Zero. Unfortunately she was not.

West led the Spade King, ducked in dummy, nine from East and four from Pamela.

The Queen followed and there was no reason to duck, so Pamela went up with the Ace, East discarding a small Heart, and now led the Diamond King. East won and led back the Diamond Jack, this cost him a trick, but I think he was hoping to make his Club Queen. Pamela won the Diamond Queen and led the eight which East won. He now did not want to play a Heart or a Diamond and led the Club Queen. Pamela ducked and then the Club four was led, which ran to the Ace. Now the club eight from dummy to hand and Pamela then played her last two Diamonds. Now she led the Heart 10 and played low from dummy, East won and had to lead into dummy's Ace - Queen of Hearts. Had East had not led the Diamond Jack and played the Club immediately, he would have been end played in Hearts and probably lose a trick to the Heart 10 as Pamela had the count on the hand.

Pamela played the hand well and managed to go only one off which was a very good result. The other two declarers went three and four off. Jim Evans

Another lot of Chris Woolley's Graduates. Thank you, Chris from all of your past students.

What card do you play to the first trick? There are two reasons for going up with the Ace quickly. The first, and best, is that given a chance, East may switch to spades. Even if the black suit breaks 4-4, you cannot afford to lose one Heart, three Spades and a Diamond. The second reason is that the hold up is quite unnecessary, because you have seven Hearts between the two hands. The diamond finesse will be taken into East's hand. If the finesse wins, all is well. If it does not, all is still well. Either East will have no Heart to return or else West will have started with four Hearts only.

Here are the answers to the question: to hold up or not to hold up; and if so, how often. To guard against a five-card suit, which may mean four losers:

(a) With five of the suit between you and dummy, hold up twice. Take the third one. That may sever communications between defenders, unless the suit breaks 4-4.

(b) With six, hold up once. Again you sever communications when the suit is divided 5-2.

(c) Holding seven, no hold up is necessary at all.
